DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

Claims 1-67 are objected to because of the following informalities:

"Automatically", as recited in almost every claim, is set-forth without basis or definition. As such, the term itself is confusing and does not provide an indication of what structures or steps are required to "automatically" perform a function within the context of all but claims 64 and 32. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-66 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Prince et al (US 6,892,089 B1). Prince et al disclose a method and system for measuring and generating a sequence of cardiac motion images including definition of reference points, measurement points (Col 6 Line 55-Col 8 Line 60, Col 9 Line 10-Col 10 Line 25), tracking software for developing motion vectors and derivations of acceleration/speed from data including length, change of length, motion direction, speed, acceleration (Col 16 Line 50-Col 18 Line 15, Col 13 Line 24-Col 15 Line 45), comparative measurements of speed/acceleration/direction across multiple points (Col 18 Line 10-15, Line 30-50), 1d/2d search fields (Col 15 Line 5-Col 19 Line 45, Col 16 Line 65-Col 17 Line 35, Col 13 Line 40-Col 14 Line 20), as well as normalization of the contrast/intensity/brightness of the image sequence (Example 2).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claim 67 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Prince et al in view of Acharya (US 2003/0045803 A1). Prince as recited above, discloses the invention as claimed, except the scanning device of Prince is an MR device. Projections and mapping withstanding, attention is directed to the secondary reference to Acharya which discloses scanning with a CT device for cardiac motion analysis and estimation (Page 1). The heart is isolated (Page 2, Paragraphs 19-25) and motion signatures for physiological locations within the heart are projected [0026] for automated processing [0026-0029]. It would have been obvious to have applied the algorithms and processing of motion data of Prince et al with the scanning device of Acharya for the formation of diagnostically relevant reconstructed images of a moving organ (such as the heart [0019-0020])
